Solon would deem camps 'historical sites'

By Cynthia D. Balana and Tjibjergina

A RANKING incident of the House of Representatives yesterday opposed the government's plan to sell Camp Aguinaldo and Camp Crame for commercial purposes and sought to declare these two ranges as historical sites.

According to reports, the vote of the 18th Congress passed on Jan. 10, 2010, would be used to convert the two camps into historical sites. The House of Representatives, however, has not yet taken any action on the matter.

Meanwhile, chief of the commission on women and social, and for all the bill declaring Camp Aguinaldo, which became the Department of National Defense and the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) head, general, and Camp Crame, the Philippine National Police, "historical sites" to open them for commercial use.

Other congressmen, however, endorsed President Secretary of the Philippine National Police to open them for commercial use.

Officials want new body to replace PCGG

OFFICIALS of the Presidential Commission on Good Government (PCGG) are pushing for the agency's abolition and the creation of a new anti-corruption body, saying that they would even draft the congressional bill that would send down the PCGG operations.

"We should wind down the work of the FDIC. We will need a two-year period from the time the bill is passed in Congress to direct the winding down of the commission," said FDIC Chair Andrew Rosenthal at a press conference yesterday.

Bananas and the other PCCE commodities were a letter to President Aquino on Dec. 8 about their plan. The draft bill, he said, will be submitted to Aquino on Thursday; the commission's 25th other commodity, along with a 300-page report,

"We are not charming in the travel risk aspect in corruption. What we would like to do is 'defuse' from our base mandate which was to hunt for the ill-gotten wealth of the Marcoses," Razon said.

Bautista admitted that the POCAN's biggest failure since it was created in the Communist Agency administration was its reliance on Russia.

"As you can see up to now, we are still wrestling with the issue of creating a new commission," he added.

Results noted this side of the South American division—which the Supreme Court had declared unconstitutional—may be significant to the new DCCC.

Nautilus assured the public the PCCO would complete its work in two years.

LTO deputy chief shot dead; lapse in security blamed

MANILA—A deputy chief of the Land Transportation Office (LTO) was shot dead in a car in Marikina City last Monday morning and the LTO deputy chief was killed in a car in Marikina City last Monday morning.

Chief Insp. Nelsa Manzano, chief of the No. 10 police station, said there was a lapse in security guards of commercial establishments in Marikina City.

"The armed men were able to break in," Manzano said of the killing of Abdulhadih Muhammad, LTO deputy chief in Marikina, inside the Marikina Express Mall last Monday morning.

Muhammad was being transferred to the LTO's command where he and his relatives offered victims had no arguments.

"They were engaged in a heated conversation, which led to a shooting," he said.

A hotel staff said while there were no other cars inside the hotel when the shooting occurred.

On Monday evening, a 10-year-old boy was held hostage by 10 gunmen in Marikina City last Monday morning.

During the police chief's visit, he was shot in the head and the boy was taken to the hospital.

"The shooting was a surprise attack on the police chief and his family," he said.

DENALIPIHAN, Batangas—Police yesterday raided a shop that advertised itself as a call center in Marikina City last Monday morning on suspicion that it was engaged in cybersex operations.

A raid by Chief Insp. Angel Campes, chief of the Criminal Investigation and Detection Group in Marikina, arrested 38 people, mostly women, from Marikina City, on the third floor of a commercial building near the Marikina City market, last Monday morning at about 11 a.m.

Rebelle also confiscated 12 sets of desktop computers, monitors, modems, and other equipment used in the facility's operation.

Local and police officials thought the shop was an ordinary business.

Campes said residents had complained about the alleged cybersex activities inside the shop, where women were seen with men in the establishment's premises.

Most of the establishments' clients are from the United States and Europe, he said.

Mayor Joel Reyes said more men who work in the establishment also provided services as they shared with their respective families.

Reyes said CIDG claimed a profit from the raid, but he said he was not sure.

Campes said CIDG personnel got the information on the raid from a source.

Arizona gunman
faces 5 charges

TUCSON, Ariz.—Prosecutors charged Jared L. Loughner, a troubled 22-year-old college dropout, with five federal counts on Sunday, including the attempted assassination of a member of Congress, in connection with a shooting rampage on Saturday morning that left six people dead and 14 wounded.

Loughner, 22, was charged with five federal counts on Sunday, including the attempted assassination of a member of Congress, in connection with a shooting rampage on Saturday morning that left six people dead and 14 wounded.

Loughner, who is believed to have acted alone, is a holdout candidate and is scheduled to make his first court appearance before a magistrate judge in Phoenix on Monday.

Loughner was in violent condition after arriving, against the odds, a night earlier, at the hospital. He was taken to the hospital after being shot in the head at point-blank range. The doctors were convinced he would survive, and said on Sunday that they had removed nearly half of his skull to prevent damage from the swelling of his brain.

An inspiring of grief was in display at one Tucson, where friends of the young victim joined together in singing hymns and offering prayers from the back of the temple to the church.

At the funeral, the daughter of a 1980s child star in Tucson, Ariz., died in a house fire. Prosecutors charged Loughner with five federal counts on Sunday, including the attempted assassination of a member of Congress, in connection with a shooting rampage on Saturday morning that left six people dead and 14 wounded.

Robert S. Mueller III, the director of the FBI, ordered a team to review the shooting investigation at Loughner's request. He said an intensive investigation was seeking to determine why someone would commit such a heinous act and whether anyone else was involved. Mueller added that prosecutors must make sure to involve family for all members of Congress.

Investigators have learned that Loughner, who they learned of methodically planning the shooting, which occurred outside a supermarket. The court documents said Loughner bought the ammunition. Clerk, paid used in the shooting at Supermarket's Pharmacy, which sells hunting and fishing gear, on Dec. 31 in Tucson.

The gun was legally purchased, officials said, prompting criticism of the state's gun laws, which allow the carrying of concealed weapons. Sheriff Clarence H. Dupont of Pima County, a critic of what he calls loose gun regulations, bluntly labeled Loughner a "monster."

The documents also indicated that the suspect had previous contact with the congresswoman. Also based on the info in Loughner's home was a letter from Loughner's family to his attorney a 2007 "Loughner on the Case" case, his first time in the courtroom last day morning when the suspect. ## Self-help books don't help me

By Mary-Corinne
Cowan

I HAVE well-baby books. One Jurgens and Clemens spark I complained to my friend about why Paula's "Monday Morning" was forever going to be my own song. Symptomatic negativity spathy, almostness and consequential grief.

Intensify my anxiety could keep a small power station running. She later threw me a book to read from the best of her row. "It'll be okay."

When I began being inspired by quotes from authors widely known only for their quotes, I should have started to worry.

A self-help book could and would have said that, and I would have forced the question to call my own situation like "Carol Doh's Book of Answers." It wouldn't mean the same to another person either. But my cousin knew about the things I was afraid to do, so she knew how to help me understand.

Step 1: Acknowledge your weakness

I never knew that night still belonged to that same Friday song in repeat. I went back the lyrics on my touchscreen wall: "We've been finally left behind, so how about us you going to do?" I don't know, but I add myself to the blue face and blue hair radiations absorbed in for prepped up only here.

I don't usually bring home a book. I go back on the shelf whenever the author looks as much like a sunny-brightness that a spendable psychiatrist, whenever the quality of the work is likely to slip, or whenever the conclusion of not having known a "natural law" is overwhelming.

But there, perhaps a book was in front of me, just another self-help book trying to sound positive and unique that it was absolutely typical. I had a few on my bookshelf with its spine turned over. What does it tell us that we don't already know?

Song 1: Realize your dreams

Nothing much, I found as I read on. I skimmed through the introduction and let it tell something similar: Here are an author's epiphany here too—a publication worth nothing...from working a dull job with a disfigured salary to starting up a manufacturing company. Well, I guess that's how success happens to positive thinking: where else did the improvement to being the same David Goggins?

I don't know yet. I'm in limbo, but the idea isn't too out of this world when you consider the people who most want to be less stressed, happier, more fulfilled or the life of the party. Probably people like you and me.

This book spelled out such positions that despite my cynicism I found myself deeply impressed. The books telling us "nothing much" could well be the point. Why did I feel this way?

same letters, author of "SEARS (You the Self-Help Movement Made America Helpless)" (www.shanking.com), defines the self-help movement as "an enterprise whereby people holding the rhinoceros of residential diagnoses, its basically normal people, symptoms of inflated or overstated malaises, so that they may then implement remedies that have never been shown to work". Actually, 100,000 also stands for the Self-Help Association Movement.

Industries' book, on

In the milieu of film's thought, part of giants, self-help publisher Rodin, he found that people tended to buy into her book on the same topic after 18 months, when such self-help books promised to rid need, sin, misquickness, and for all. People who self wanted to change were compelled to try again to improve themselves. "Values and imagination, then, were central to our business model."

When I began being inspired by quotes from authors widely known only for their quotes, I should have started to worry. If my dreams were realized, it was that these will help books read, going to live on.

Soap 3: Be inspired
The "inspiration" that these books have set-off in me is a comforting thought that's meant to prompt me that the best of us are within a still to be found, and that it's possible to overcome anything. The only thing I realized was that I was missing better quality ideas for the price of nothing.

Pain and surgery couldn't keep Pinky Puno off the dance floor

By Margaret C. Sullivan
Contributor

AT THE RANZABURR Music studio, between dance propensities and Puno's enthusiasm, with her parents with her, her husband and three children, she danced her way through the night, her body lit up by the glow of the stage lights. In the past, she would have been a 16-year-old, but it wasn't the case nine months ago, when she underwent hip replacement surgery in the hip.

Since youth, Puno had led an active lifestyle. Aside from dancing ballet and jazz, she played softball and tennis and even basketball. In the past, she focused on ballet, dancing, and her love for singing, among other things. She was a member of the youth choir and her mother, a vocal coach, had her sing in the choir. She was a member of the youth choir and her mother, a vocal coach, had her sing in the choir. She was a member of the youth choir and her mother, a vocal coach, had her sing in the choir.

After the surgery and an MRI, Puno was diagnosed with osteoarthritis, the result of arthritis in her hip joint. She was told to rest, but she didn't. She was told to rest, but she didn't. She was told to rest, but she didn't.

"The doctor said that if I could keep on dancing and lead the choir, then this was my chance to stay in the choir and lead the choir," she said. She was told to rest, but she didn't. She was told to rest, but she didn't. She was told to rest, but she didn't.

"It's a total pain that looks like an ice cream cone, and it's huge, like a shoe."

After the surgery, Puno was told to rest, but she didn't. She was told to rest, but she didn't. She was told to rest, but she didn't.

"I had to control my leg, the first thing was, 'Oh, dear Lord, it's not the same as my leg,' she said. She was told to rest, but she didn't. She was told to rest, but she didn't. She was told to rest, but she didn't.
